 COMMISSIONER CHAN: Aye. COMMISSIONER CHAN: Aye. CHAIRMAN PATON: Commissioner Kimble? COMMISSIONER KIMBLE: Aye. CHAIRMAN PATON: And Commissioner Paton, that is I, and by I vote aye, as well. Item III, discussion and possible action on Executive Director's report. Mr. Collins? MR. COLLINS: Yes. Thank you, Mr. Chairman, Members. As you can see, notwithstanding the various circumstances and, particularly, the COVID situation, we've got a very full voter education outreach agenda. I think that the things I'd like to highlight and, then, I would and, then, I would defer to Gina on anything else she wants to particularly highlight, if I might, but a couple of a couple of things. Avery has been working with ASU on the Voter Mobilization Planning Committee, as well as with the presenting to the Maricopa County Recorder's Office. And and Alec and Gina have met with the Arizona Center for Disability Law and Outreach, and then I and then, I think, that probably the biggest thing and the thing that we're most excited about is the partnership that Gina has spearheaded with the with the Arizona Commission on the Deaf and Hard of Hearing to allow for the Voter Education Guide to be produced in American Sign Language. This is a first for us, and we think this is maybe the first time something like this has been done by a by a State partnership certainly in Arizona at this scale. So, that's we're incredibly excited about that opportunity to continue to broaden the accessibility of voter education information to every voter in the state. We do have coming up a panel discussion that Gina will be presenting along with and the Commission will be sponsoring and that Gina will be presenting along with the Coconino County Recorder and

So, we anticipate that numbering the number of funded candidates increasing here in the near future. So, that's I think that's about all I've got, unless Mr. Chairman, unless you've got unless you or any Commissioners have any questions or if anybody else Gina, Mike. CHAIRMAN PATON: Actually, this is Commissioner Paton now. MR. COLLINS: Yeah. CHAIRMAN PATON: I do have a question or, I guess, it's really a concern for Tom and for Gina. I was, kind of during some of these elections when the across the country when these it seems like after the after the election day, things go on on weeks and weeks and weeks mainly because people are dropping off their early ballots. I was wondering if we could coordinate something with the Secretary of State reminding people that things would go faster if they would get their early ballots in early. Is there some kind of public some kind	1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23	Relatedly, in a more in a more directed effort, we've tried and I've tried to in forums where we're engaging directly with the press specifically, we've tried to stress that we have to that in order to properly cover elections at this point, because of the expansion of vote by mail, we need to both there needs to be attention paid by reporters to why the delay exists in the first place. In other words, we can engage in public education on the issue as much as we can, but unless but if the if the press and this is this has been this is something that everyone from, you know, sort of nationally recognized election, you know, sort of professor ivory tower types down to, obviously, the election officials that we work with recognize that if the if the education efforts on that issue do not see a corresponding treatment by the press to prepare the public to understand why delays are happening, they won't be as effective. So, we have you know. So, I've tried, for example, in forums where I'm more likely to interact with reporters, to hit that point again and again. So, you know, it's, sort of, a two-prong issue.
	of advertising advertising campaign that we could coordinate with the Secretary of State? I just think		One, what's the public's perception, how can we address it through our through our paid and earned efforts;

COLLINS: Mr. Chairman, I think	2 3 4 5	and, then, two, how do we get it how do we get the horse race, sort of, politics of calling races and determining races to be to be less of an emphasis so that folks understand what's going on. So, that's that's, sort of, my answer, which is it's not a I know it's not really, like,
7 8	there's I have a two-part answer to that and, then, Gina or however you whatever else you want to add,	7 8	a the short answer is yes. The longer answer is here's how.
12	please do. My answer would be twofold. First, we are engaging in more more education efforts around vote by mail. We anticipate the potential to coordinate better with the Secretary, although, because of some	11	And, Gina, I don't know if there's anything else you'd want to add. MS. ROBERTS: Yes. Mr. Chairman, Commissioners, this is Gina. One thing I would add is we did have a
14 15	background issues with the Joint Legislative Budget Committee, it's not totally clear what the Secretary is	14	legislative change that allows the counties more time now to start processing those early ballots. So, we
18	or isn't going to do or be able to do. We know that they have a campaign a public education campaign devoted to issues related to election security and election misinformation, particularly.	16 17 18	have Senate Bill 1054 that passed. So, now, once the counties take care of the accuracy testing, they have, I believe, seven extra days than they used to in the past to actually start processing and tabulating those

So, I just I remember the last election where all these things were pushed back, it was very unnerving. And I would rather not see that happen again. MR. COLLINS: Yeah, Mr CHAIRMAN PATON: So, I don't know. Tom, do you have anything else? MR. COLLINS: No. But, Mr. Chairman, that's that's a good idea. We can we can definitely work on that, and I definitely there's definitely a heightened sense of sensitivity on a on a national level and a local level to precisely what you're talking about.
